UCLA CONFERENCE CENTER COOKS UP A NEW ANGLE ON TEAM BUILDING

LAKE ARROWHEAD, CA—Options are limited for managers seeking unique team building exercises that don't involve wood blocks or crayons. It's easy enough to say you'll form a softball team that plays against other departments or divisions, but keeping people interested is another matter.

The UCLA Lake Arrowhead Conference Center & Mountain Resort has long offered unique and diverse activities to inspire, motivate and energize corporate teams. From an on-site ropes course to an afternoon kayaking adventure, the UCLA Conference Center offers options unavailable at most hotels or conference facilities.

This year, however, the folks at the UCLA Lake Arrowhead Conference Center have outdone themselves and introduced something truly unique: The Bruin Chef Challenge. Under the direction of the celebrated master chefs at the UCLA Conference Center, teams compete in a creative cooking challenge. Marketing versus Human Resources. Dallas versus Miami. Even invite your biggest market competitor to see if they can beat your team in the kitchen.

Teams spend an afternoon working, supporting, overcoming obstacles and encouraging one another to get to the finish line: a four-course gourmet meal.

About 90 minutes from most of Los Angeles and Orange County, the facilities at the UCLA Lake Arrowhead Conference Center & Resort are available to any group and not just for UC-affiliated organizations. Accommodations for your team are available on the 40-acre lakeside property nestled in the San Bernardino Mountains.
